Lighting in modern offi ce and administration buildings must above all perform two basic functions. It must create a pleasant environment for in which people can concentrate and work effectively, and it must create the right atmosphere so that customers and visitors can easily fi nd their way around and feel comfortable and welcome. The important thing here is for the lighting to be suitable for the particular sector of industry, the tasks to be carried out and the zones in which these tasks are performed.
